Scientists and environmental experts have been warning us for years about the dangers of global warming. However, it often takes a catastrophic event or a wake-up call to make us realize the urgency of the situation. We cannot ignore the signs any longer.

One of the critical aspects of combating climate change requires reducing greenhouse gas emissions. This can be achieved by transitioning to clean and renewable energy sources such as wind, solar, and hydro power. Investing in sustainable infrastructure and promoting energy-efficient technologies will be crucial in achieving this goal.

Another vital component of our fight against climate change is preserving and restoring our natural habitats. Forests play a crucial role in absorbing carbon dioxide emissions, acting as essential carbon sinks. Protecting and regrowing forests can significantly contribute to reducing greenhouse gas concentrations in the atmosphere.

Furthermore, we need to adopt sustainable agricultural practices to ensure food security while mitigating climate change. Implementing methods that reduce deforestation, conserve water, and minimize the use of chemical fertilizers will play a significant role in achieving this balance.

Education and awareness are also vital in our efforts to tackle climate change. Society needs to be well-informed about the impacts of our actions and the importance of making sustainable choices. By empowering individuals with knowledge, we can create a collective movement for change.

A united front by governments, businesses, and individuals is indispensable in addressing this global crisis. Climate change does not discriminate between borders or political affiliations. It affects all of us, regardless of our background or geographic location.

The time for apathy and denial is over. We must take responsibility for our actions and work towards sustainable solutions. The decisions made today will shape the future of our planet.

Together, we can create a world that is resilient to climate change and ensures a brighter future for generations to come. Let us join hands and appeal to the world to unite in this fight for our planet.

“This impassioned account is ideal for readers well versed in current climate change activism, especially efforts spearheaded by Greta Thunberg.”—Library Journal

From the voice of the beloved world religious leader comes an eye-opening manifesto that empowers the generation of today to step up, take action and save our environment.

Saving the climate is our common duty. With each passing day, climate change is causing Pacific islands to disappear into the sea, accelerating the extinction of species at alarming proportions and aggravating a water shortage that has affected the entire world. In short, climate change can no longer be denied—it threatens our existence on earth.

In this new book, the Dalai Lama, one of the most influential figures of our time, calls on political decision makers to finally fight against deadlock and ignorance on this issue and to stand up for a different, more climate-friendly world and for the younger generation to assert their right to regain their future.
