then you are in for a treat! We have curated a collection of short stories flash fiction that guarantees to captivate your mind and leave you wanting for more.

What is Flash Fiction?

Flash fiction is a unique genre that emphasizes brevity while conveying a complete story. It allows writers to craft compelling narratives within a limited word count, typically ranging from a few sentences to around 1,000 words. This form of storytelling is highly challenging as authors must deliver meaning, character development, and a satisfying resolution in a concise format.

While flash fiction provides an intense experience for readers, it also poses an exciting creative exercise for writers. By pushing the boundaries of storytelling, authors craft innovative tales that capture the essence of a moment or explore thought-provoking concepts.

Why Choose Flash Fiction?

The beauty of flash fiction lies in its ability to transport readers to various settings and evoke powerful emotions within a short span of time. Whether you have a few minutes to spare or crave a quick literary escape, flash fiction offers a perfect solution. These stories provide a burst of entertainment, allowing you to immerse yourself in different worlds, characters, and scenarios - all without committing to a lengthy novel.

Moreover, flash fiction allows writers to experiment with diverse themes and styles, pushing creative boundaries to break free from conventional narratives. Each story is a self-contained masterpiece, carefully crafted to deliver maximum impact with minimal word count. This dynamic form of storytelling stimulates the imagination and keeps readers engaged throughout, leaving a lasting impression that lingers even after the story concludes.

The Missing Link is a unique collection of short stories and flash fiction, dealing mostly with events, incidents, expectations, dreams, and the reality of immigrants settled in Canada.

The book features nine engaging short stories and three pieces of flash fiction. The short stories are “Darkness in Day”, “Other Sky”, “Pain for Pain”, “The Bengal Kittens and Upcoming Fall”, “The Missing Link”, “The Portuguese Couple”, “The Return”, “Melting”, and “The Server and Baker”. And flash fiction includes “The Girl at my Store”, “The Little Fairy”, and “Ma”.

These stories provide an insight into new challenging life abroad and can be read with delight and instructions.

If you enjoy tales with twists and unexpected endings, suspense, philosophical insights, and relish in the life stories of immigrants, then this collection is for you.

The main themes are resonated in the following sentence.

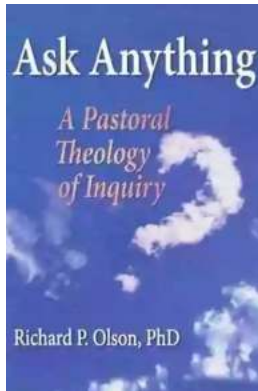

Immigrants' life is like a life that is lived by a lover who stays with their present spouse but reminisces incessantly about their past beloved.

Some excerpts from the collection:

...I was scared to think if they were some incorporeal souls. I didn't believe in them though. But darkness doesn't care what I believe or not. It simply makes us believe the unbelievable in its clutch... “The Portuguese Couple”

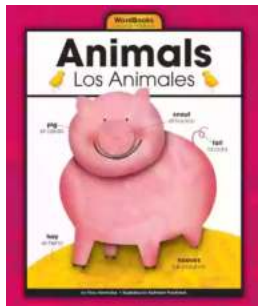

...The alarm wakes him up. Or maybe a nightmare. Whatever it is, he turns the light on and finds the alarm clock chiming at one in the night. Chiming like a snarling dog. He mutes it. Mutes as if he strangled his worst enemy. Still drowsy, he rubs his eyes one or two times and turns the light off. The room is filled up with darkness. A darkness that lures him into going back to sleep. He might set the alarm on ‘Snooze’ mode for fifteen minutes and sinks into sleep again... “The Server and Baker”
