Dreams Of Being On Top Of The World - Dog Tales

Have you ever seen a dog gazing at the horizon with a look of longing in its eyes? Perhaps you've observed your furry companion sitting by the window, watching the world go by, as if imagining a life filled with adventures and triumphs. Dogs, just like humans, have dreams too. In this article, we explore the dreams of dogs, and specifically their dreams of being on top of the world.

The Power of Dreams

Dreams hold a special place in our lives. From an early age, we are taught to chase our dreams, to believe that anything is possible. Dogs embody this spirit as well. They have a unique ability to dream and believe in the impossible.

When you see your dog convulsing while sleeping or hear it softly whimpering, it is likely immersing itself in a dream. While we can only guess at the content of their dreams, one can't help but wonder if their dreams are similar to ours, with visions of reaching new heights and conquering challenges.

Ambitions of Canine Adventurers

Dogs are known to possess an unwavering spirit of adventure. Regardless of their size or breed, they often dream of exploring the vastness of the world beyond their pet-friendly neighborhoods. These dreams can manifest in various forms.

Some dogs dream of climbing mountains, their paws touching the summit as the wind blows through their fur. They crave the adrenaline rush of conquering challenging terrains and experiencing the world from a higher perspective.

Imagine a Golden Retriever standing on top of a mountain, basking in the glory of its achievement, tail wagging with joy.

Other dogs dream of swimming in the vast oceans, their paws gracefully gliding through the waves. They desire the freedom of exploring different underwater worlds and encountering marine creatures. Picture a Labrador Retriever swimming alongside dolphins, content with having its dreams fulfilled.

There are also dogs who dream of running through the vast plains and forests, chasing after wildlife with incredible speed and agility. These dogs are born with an innate desire to be in tune with nature, fulfilling their dreams of living a life free from restraints.

Can We Help Our Dogs Achieve Their Dreams?

As responsible pet owners, it's our duty to ensure our dogs have a fulfilling life, both physically and mentally. While we may not be able to directly fulfill their dreams of being on top of the world, we can provide them with experiences that ignite their spirits and bring them closer to their aspirations.

Take your dog to new places - whether it's a hiking trail, a dog-friendly beach, or a dog park with vast open spaces. Expose them to different environments, allowing them to explore and embrace their adventurous side.

Engage in activities that tap into their instincts and natural abilities. Consider enrolling your dog in agility classes or scent work training, where they can channel their energy and instincts in a productive and exciting way.

Provide mental stimulation through puzzle toys, interactive games, and learning new tricks. Dogs thrive when challenged and mentally stimulated, so make an effort to keep their minds sharp and active.

Our furry friends may not be able to communicate their dreams to us in words, but their actions and behaviors give us glimpses into their desires. Just like us, dogs yearn for something more, something greater. By providing them with love, care, and opportunities to explore and thrive, we can help them get closer to fulfilling their dreams of being on top of the world.

So next time you catch your dog daydreaming, take a moment to imagine the adventures it envisions. Cherish their dreams and help them live their best lives, because even though they may not speak, their dreams speak volumes.

A story of three polar dogs who became lost from their pack. Follow these homeless dogs as they dream of being back on top of the world!

Ole, Bjorn and Kwan are friends and are members of the same pack of dogs. The pack of sledge dogs race from town to town in the snow and deliver goods to people who really need them. The dogs become homeless one day as they lose their friends in a snow storm.

However, they have each other's friendship and support and are able to have lots of fun as they explore the beautiful polar lands. When they become tired and huddle with each other to go to sleep, they realise that they do have an imaginary owner who visits them from the stars and allows them to dream far more fun and adventure.

Polar Dogs is an uplifting, rhyming story that explores the importance of natural beauty, friendships and belonging. They wake each morning and fill their days and nights with as much as life can give them.

This beautifully illustrated picture book is suitable for children aged between four to nine. A great bedtime read or as a classroom story to encourage discussions on animal kindness and the environment.

'They may not have much; they may not need much but they may want you!'

Follow them and their simple beat of life again and again and again.

This simple story relates to the simple rhythm of life. The homeless dogs learn to cope and make the most of what life has given them. They eat, exercise, stay clean and maintain their joyful spirit every day and night. It is when they dream, that we realise that they are able to transcend themselves to even greater joy.

Teaching kids about nature is an important part of their education and also an important part of how they can make a difference in the future. There are many pictures below that may or may not be used to teach children about an issue in the polar regions like;

- Sustainable tourism,
- The importance of sea ice
- Importance of glaciers & ice caps
- Sustainable development
- Exploration of gas, oil and minerals
- Rising air and sea temperatures
- Sustainable fishing
- Protection of migrating animals
- Human conflict with polar bears
