The History of Elder Futhark Runes

The Elder Futhark, also known as the Germanic Futhark, was used by the ancient Germanic tribes between the 2nd and 8th centuries CE. It is believed to have originated from the original runic alphabet, known as the Old Italic script. The word "Futhark" is derived from the first six letters of this alphabet: F, U, Th, A, R, and K.

The runes were primarily used for writing, but their magical and divination properties were also widely acknowledged. They were believed to hold the wisdom of the gods and could tap into the ancient forces of the universe. Each rune symbolizes a specific concept or energy, making them a powerful tool for spiritual exploration and guidance.
