

New Words Shall Be Written Upon The Sky

Have you ever imagined a world where words could be seen and read in the sky? A world where our thoughts and emotions can be expressed through the very fabric of the atmosphere? This may sound like the stuff of science fiction, but believe it or not, this dream could become a reality in the near future.

In recent years, scientists and innovators have been exploring the possibilities of using advanced technology to project words onto the sky. This phenomenon, aptly named "skywriting," may soon revolutionize the way we communicate with one another and leave a lasting impact on our daily lives.

In its simplest form, skywriting involves the use of aircraft to release smoke or vapor, creating large-scale words or messages visible to people on the ground. Traditionally, this technique has been used for advertising purposes, with companies paying to have their brand names or slogans written across the sky. However, the potential applications of skywriting go far beyond advertising.

Imagine attending a music festival or sporting event where lyrics, motivational quotes, or messages of unity illuminate the sky above you. Picture a marriage proposal written in glowing letters, floating gently through the air. The possibilities are endless.

But how exactly does skywriting work? The process typically involves a small airplane equipped with special smoke-generating devices. As the aircraft flies at a predetermined altitude, smoke is released to form letters or shapes in the sky. The pilot controls the release of smoke through an onboard computer system, ensuring precision and accuracy in the formation of the words.

Technology is rapidly advancing, and researchers are now exploring more advanced methods of skywriting. One such innovation is the use of drones. These unmanned aerial vehicles offer greater flexibility and maneuverability compared to traditional aircraft. With drones, skywriters could create intricate patterns and even animate words in the sky, captivating audiences with mesmerizing displays.

The future of skywriting could also involve the integration of augmented reality (AR). Imagine wearing a pair of AR glasses that allow you to see virtual words seamlessly intertwined with the real world. This would enable individuals to leave personalized messages for loved ones or express their creativity in a completely new and immersive way.

Apart from its aesthetic appeal, skywriting has the potential to impact various industries. Advertising agencies could leverage this technology to create unique and attention-grabbing campaigns. Political campaigns could use skywriting to spread their messages across vast areas, reaching a wider audience. Even the field of education could benefit from skywriting, with teachers using it as a visual aid for lessons or to ignite students' curiosity.

However, as with any innovation, there are challenges that need to be addressed. The environmental impact of skywriting, particularly in terms of emissions and waste produced by aircraft, must be carefully considered. Additionally, ensuring the safety and regulation of skywriting operations is crucial to prevent accidents or interference with air traffic.

Despite these challenges, the concept of skywriting carries immense potential and captures our collective imagination. Just as books have shaped our world for centuries, projecting words onto the sky could revolutionize how we express ourselves and leave a lasting impact on future generations.

Imagine walking through a bustling city, where the buildings around you are adorned with floating words and phrases, serving as a testament to human creativity and thought. The sky would become our collective canvas, an extension of our minds and souls.

The possibilities are indeed limitless. Let us embrace this new frontier and redefine the limits of communication. Let us turn our gazes skyward, for "New Words Shall Be Written Upon The Sky."

In Angel Messages – Parables of Wisdom for the Thirsting Soul – real angels speak to us prophetically, telling loving stories from the heart. “We have come but for one purpose – to prepare a way for the coming of the Messiah.”

With the brightest comet in the heavens of the century, the spiritual messengers of God arrived in 1970. On April 3, 1970, they began to speak through a humble man, bringing a message of good news to all who will hear. Their words were tape recorded from 1970 through 1989 as they spoke through Ray Elkins, in Globe, Arizona. Now, their words have been transcribed for you.

Volume 4 of 5, New Words Shall Be Written upon the Sky, shares 48 parables that the angels spoke from 1983 to 1985. Each is beautifully illustrated, making the parables even more enjoyable for you to read. These are all new. They were spoken after the 1982 collection, Parables for Today, sold out (both fir first and second printings). People loved reading parables told by angels. Their depth and wisdom nurtures our souls.

Parables have long been told to teach men and women. Two thousand years ago, Jesus' disciples asked him, "Why do you speak to them in parables?" He replied, 'It has been granted to you to know the secrets of the kingdom of heaven; but to those others it has not been granted.'... 'But happy are your eyes because they see, and your ears because they hear! Many prophets and saints, I tell you, desired to see what you now see, yet never saw it; to hear what you hear, yet never heard it.'" (Matthew 13:10-15)

"In all the teaching to the crowds Jesus spoke in parables.... This was to fulfill the prophecy of Isaiah: 'I will open my mouth in parables; I will utter things kept secret since the world was made.'" (Matthew 13:35)

The spiritual messengers God send today say, "We have come, not to change the laws or the prophecies, but to show man their fulfillment for this time." "We are here to prepare a way for the coming of the Messiah." "New words shall be written upon the sky, but they must be written in men's hearts first."

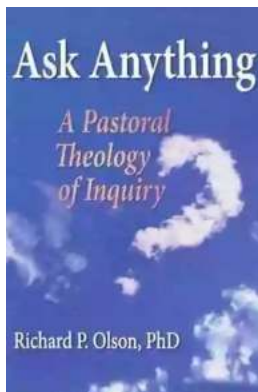

These Angel Messages come to bring fuller meaning to our lives and better understanding of spiritual teachings. They are given, not just to one faith, but to people in many faiths throughout the world. These parables are for today.

This is volume 4. Once you read it, you'll want to read all five volumes.

Some of the Angel Messages were first published as Parables for Today in 1982 with 142 parables – each given to bring man closer to God. But now you can read all of them. Angel Messages is the complete collection through 1989. This is a beautifully illustrated writing, transcribed from words spoken directly by spiritual messengers of God to you.
