This book, "The Shark" is the second book in the series "Spirit of the Shark". It is the continuation of the first book "Death of the Phoenix".

This series deals with the experiences of a small boy, who lived through different Japanese concentration camps during WW2, on the island of Java, Indonesia.

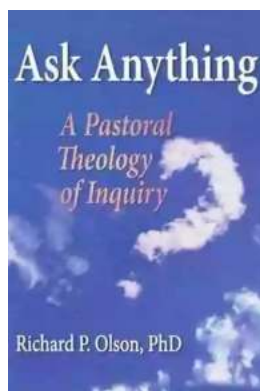

The story deals with the brutal events children were exposed and subjected to by the Japanese Kenpeitai.

Kees, the main character in the story, knew where he stood with his Japanese oppressors but had trouble dealing with the ridicule he was subjected to by his so called liberators, who mend well but could not understand the world these children had lived in.

These books are the combined recollections of the author, his mother Beth and his sister Toos.

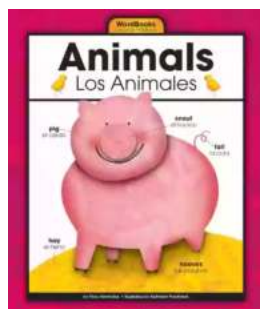

Rather than having to live in the civilized world he attempts to reach the horizon where no people, only great sharks live.

The names of characters in these books has been changed since most of them have past away.
