

The True History of Planet Earth: Nibiru, Destroyer of Worlds

For millennia, people have gazed up at the stars, wondering about the mysteries of the universe. One such mystery that has captured the imaginations of many is the presence of Nibiru, a hypothetical planet said to be in an elliptical orbit around our sun. According to proponents of the Nibiru Cataclysm theory, this mysterious planet is set to collide with Earth, bringing about the end of our world as we know it. In this article, we will delve into the history of Nibiru and explore the evidence surrounding its existence, as well as the impact it could have on our planet.

The Origins of Nibiru

The story of Nibiru can be traced back to ancient Mesopotamian mythology, specifically the Babylonian creation myth known as the Enuma Elish. This ancient text describes the birth of the universe and the creation of Earth by the god Marduk. According to the myth, Marduk used the remains of a celestial body called Tiamat to fashion Earth and the other planets of our solar system.

However, what sets Nibiru apart from the other planets is its elongated, comet-like orbit. It is believed that Nibiru takes around 3,600 years to complete one orbit around the sun, spending most of its time in the outer reaches of our solar system. As it approaches the sun, its gravitational pull supposedly has a disruptive effect on the other planets, leading to cataclysmic events here on Earth.

The Evidence for Nibiru

While Nibiru remains a topic of debate among scientists and astronomers, there are some who claim to have evidence supporting its existence. One such argument is based on the anomalies found in the orbits of certain celestial bodies in our solar system. Proponents of the Nibiru Cataclysm theory argue that these anomalies can only be explained by the presence of an additional planet with a significant gravitational pull.

Additionally, ancient civilizations such as the Sumerians and the Mayans allegedly possessed knowledge of Nibiru's existence. Sumerian texts describe Nibiru as the home of a race of beings known as the Anunnaki, who are said to have visited Earth in ancient times and had a significant influence on human civilization.

Furthermore, some individuals claim to have witnessed Nibiru firsthand. These alleged sightings often describe a reddish celestial body appearing in the sky, accompanied by various natural disasters such as earthquakes and extreme weather events. While skeptics dismiss these accounts as mere hoaxes or misinterpretations, believers argue that they provide compelling evidence for the existence of Nibiru.

The Cataclysmic Impact

If Nibiru is indeed on a collision course with Earth, the consequences would be catastrophic. According to the Nibiru Cataclysm theory, the planet's massive gravitational pull would cause widespread destruction, triggering earthquakes, tsunamis, and volcanic eruptions on an unimaginable scale. The resulting chaos and devastation would inevitably lead to the extinction of countless species, including humans.

Some believe that the governments of the world are aware of the impending doom but are deliberately keeping this information hidden from the public. Allegedly, elaborate underground bunkers and secret facilities have been constructed to ensure the survival of a select few, leaving the majority of humanity to face their fate on the surface.

The Skeptic's Perspective

While the Nibiru Cataclysm theory has gained a following in certain circles, the majority of the scientific community dismisses it as pseudoscience. Astronomers argue that the existence of such a planet in an extremely elongated orbit would have already been detected by now, considering the advanced technology at our disposal.

The anomalies attributed to Nibiru can be explained by other celestial phenomena, such as the gravitational influence of large gas giants like Jupiter or Neptune. Furthermore, ancient texts can often be subject to interpretation and should not be considered concrete evidence for the existence of a hypothetical planet.

The Endless Quest for Answers

As we search for answers about our place in the universe, the mystery of Nibiru continues to captivate the human imagination. While the evidence for its existence remains speculative at best, its allure lies in the potential it holds to unlock the secrets of our ancient past and shed light on the forces that govern our universe.

Whether Nibiru is indeed a destroyer of Earth or just another fascinating celestial puzzle waiting to be solved, its mythos adds a touch of intrigue and wonder to our exploration of the cosmos.

Planet X entered our solar system recently, as indeed it must every 3600 years. So much is unknown regarding the brown dwarf star system that is rocketing towards Earth at over 30,000 miles per hour. NASA scientists are tight-lipped. They do not want you to panic. The truth is they have no means of averting the destruction of Earth. What has been foretold is the greatest cataclysm in twelve thousand years. Our Governments must maintain secrecy not only regarding the approach of a planet eight times bigger than Earth but also regarding their secret black ops programs paid for in blood. When we are wiped out by massive tsunami, earthquakes, under tons of volcanic ash the illuminati elite will escape, but how? . The evil cabal certainly don't wish YOU to. READ this book.
