Planning Your Canoe Expedition

Before setting off on your canoe adventure, it's important to plan and prepare to make the most out of your journey. Here's what you need to know:

Choosing the Right Route

The Midwest offers a wide range of canoeing routes, each with its own unique features and challenges. Whether you prefer calm lakes, winding rivers, or thrilling rapids, there's a route tailored to your preferences. Conduct thorough research to identify the most suitable route that aligns with your level of experience and desired difficulty.

Gathering the Essentials

When preparing for your canoe trip, it's vital to pack all the necessary equipment. Apart from the obvious canoe and paddle, make sure to bring appropriate safety gear such as life jackets, a first aid kit, and a water-resistant map. Additionally, pack enough food and water to sustain you throughout the trip, as well as camping gear if you plan on spending the nights under the stars.

Checking the Weather

As with any outdoor adventure, weather conditions play a crucial role in determining the success and safety of your canoe trip. Keep an eye on weather forecasts and plan accordingly. Always prioritize your safety and reschedule your trip if the conditions are unfavorable.

Embarking on Your Canoe Adventure

Now that you're fully prepared, it's time to hit the water and begin your unforgettable canoe journey through the captivating Midwestern landscape. Here's what you can expect:

Marvelous Lakes and Glorious Sunsets

The Midwest boasts an array of stunning lakes, shimmering like jewels amidst the picturesque countryside. Imagine paddling through crystal-clear waters, surrounded by tranquil nature. As the evening approaches, prepare to witness breathtaking sunsets that paint the sky with vibrant hues, creating a magical ambiance.

Exploring Serene Rivers and Hidden Coves

As you navigate through rivers and channels, you'll encounter hidden coves and enchanting backwaters that are begging to be explored. Don't be afraid to venture off the beaten path and discover the untouched beauty hidden within the Midwestern landscape. You may stumble upon hidden waterfalls, moss-covered caves, or even encounter some friendly wildlife along the way.

Immersing in the Local Culture

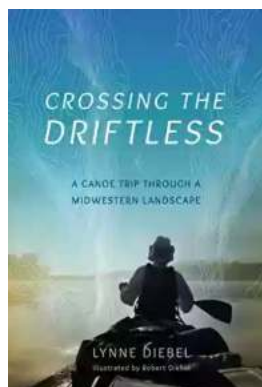

While the Midwestern landscape steals the show, the region's rich cultural heritage adds an extra layer of fascination to your canoe expedition. Take time to explore charming small towns along your route, meet friendly locals, and savor their delicious regional cuisine. Attend local festivals, art exhibitions, or music performances to truly immerse yourself in the heart and soul of the Midwest.

The Lasting Memories

As your canoe trip through the Midwestern landscape draws to an end, you'll carry with you memories that will last a lifetime. The captivating beauty, thrilling adventures, and deep connection with nature will leave an indelible mark on your soul. You'll gain a renewed appreciation for the wonders of the great outdoors and the precious ecosystems that thrive within.

So, embark on this extraordinary journey and let the Midwestern landscape take your breath away. Grab your paddle, hop in your canoe, and get ready for the adventure of a lifetime!

The Driftless Area is the land the glaciers missed, an ancient landscape of bluffs, ridgetops, and steep valleys that long ago was a seabed. Covering much of southwestern Wisconsin, its contours were deeply carved from bedrock, not by ice but by many rivers.

Crossing the Driftless is both a traveler's tale and an exploration of this dramatic environment, following the streams of geologic and human history. Lynne Diebel and her husband, Bob, crossed the Driftless Area by canoe, journeying 359 river miles (and six Mississippi River locks and five portages) from Faribault, Minnesota, where her family has a summer home on Cedar Lake, to their Wisconsin home in Stoughton, one block from the Yahara River. Traveling by river and portage, they paddled downstream on the Cannon and Mississippi rivers and upstream on the Wisconsin River, in the tradition of voyageurs. Lynne tells the story of their trip, but also the stories of the rivers they canoed and the many tributaries whose confluences they passed.
