This innovative approach to teaching sight words not only makes learning fun, but also ensures that your child develops a strong foundation in reading and writing from an early age. In this comprehensive guide, we will explore the benefits of using the What Do You See Sight Words method and provide you with tips and resources to get started. Let's dive in!

What are Sight Words?

Sight words, also known as high-frequency words, are words that appear frequently in written texts and do not follow regular phonetic rules. Examples of sight words include "the," "and," "is," and "have". These words are essential for early readers to memorize because they are so commonly used. By recognizing sight words at a glance, children can develop fluency and reading comprehension skills. Therefore, it is crucial to introduce sight words to preschool and kindergarten children in a way that is engaging and memorable.

The What Do You See Sight Words Method

The What Do You See Sight Words method takes advantage of the visual nature of children by associating each sight word with a memorable image. By connecting the word with a picture, children are more likely to remember the word and its meaning. This method taps into their natural curiosity and visual memory, making the learning process enjoyable and effective.

Step 1: Introduce the Sight Words

The first step in the What Do You See Sight Words method is to introduce the sight words to your child. You can create flashcards or use an interactive sight word app to display each word along with its image. Repetition is key at this stage, so make sure to review the words regularly to reinforce the learning process.

Step 2: Make it Interactive

To make learning sight words more interactive, engage your child in various activities. For example, you can create a scavenger hunt where your child needs to find objects that represent the sight words. Alternatively, you can turn sight word recognition into a game by using a treasure map and rewarding your child with small prizes for correctly identifying the words.

Step 3: Read Sight Word Books

Reading sight word books is another effective way to reinforce the learning of sight words. Look for books specifically designed for early readers that incorporate the sight words you are focusing on. Encourage your child to read the books out loud, pointing to each word as they go along. This helps to build their reading fluency and word recognition skills.

Step 4: Practice Writing Sight Words

Writing sight words is an important part of the learning process. Provide your child with a variety of materials, such as crayons, markers, and finger paints, to make writing fun and enjoyable. You can also create sight word tracing sheets or use sensory activities like sand or shaving cream to help your child practice writing the sight words.

Benefits of Using the What Do You See Sight Words Method

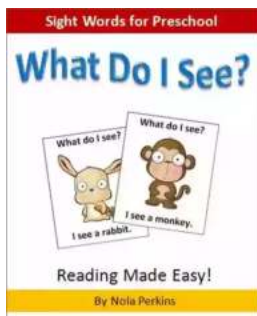

The What Do You See Sight Words method offers several benefits for preschool and kindergarten children:

1. Engaging and Fun: By associating each sight word with a memorable image, learning becomes enjoyable and exciting for children.
