FHE Family History ABCs

By Charles Clayton

To play this family history game, remove pages 24-25 from the magazine. Glue them onto lightweight cardboard; let dry. Cut out the picture cards and put them into a small, sturdy bag. Have the first player draw out one card from the grab bag and tell what the person or action or thing named on it has to do with family history. There are no "wrong" answers. If the person drawing the card can't think of an answer, the other players may help. After playing the game, have each family member choose something that he or she will do during the coming week or month to add to your family's history.

B is for Beloved Traditions: Passing Down the Torch

Traditions hold a special place in every family. Whether it's secret recipes passed from generation to generation or unique celebrations held dear, these cherished customs are an integral part of your family's story. Embrace the customs that have been woven into the tapestry of your family history and preserve them for future generations.

C is for Creativity: Crafting Our Narrative

Unleash your creativity and let the vivid imagination of your family shine through the art of storytelling. From the words of a captivating novel to the stroke of a paintbrush on a canvas, expressing your family's narrative through various creative mediums adds depth to their incredible stories. Explore the talents present within your family and create unforgettable masterpieces inspired by your shared experiences.

D is for Delightful Characters: The Heroes Among Us

Your family tree is filled with delightful characters whose stories deserve recognition. Dive into the lives of these remarkable individuals to discover their compelling anecdotes, their dreams, and the legacies they have left behind. From quirky aunts to adventurous uncles, each family member possesses a captivating tale waiting to be unearthed.

E is for Endless Bond: The Ties That Bind

Family bonds are unbreakable, and they form the backbone of your family's creative stories. Explore the deep connections that exist within your family, the shared values, and the unconditional love that transcends time and distance. These bonds are the threads that weave your family's stories into a seamless tapestry of togetherness.

F is for Future Legacy: Leaving a Lasting Impression

As our lives progress, it's important to consider the legacy we leave behind for future generations. Infuse your family's creative stories with meaningful lessons, morals, and aspirations to guide the generations to come. By sharing the triumphs and lessons learned in your family's history, you contribute to a legacy that will be cherished for years to come.

G is for Glimpse into the Unknown: Unearthing Family Mysteries

Every family has its fair share of mysteries, lurking in the shadows of the past. Unravel the secrets and untold stories that have become a part of your family's folklore. The thrill of discovery and the excitement of unraveling the unknown will add an intriguing twist to your family's creative stories.

H is for Heartfelt Connections: Embracing Shared Memories

Memories play a vital role in each family's creative stories. Cherish the shared experiences, the laughter, the tears, and the heartfelt connections immortalized in those memories. Revisit the old photo albums, listen to tales recounted by older family members, and immerse yourself in the moments that have shaped your family's journey.

Creative stories aren't created in isolation. Foster interactions within your family, allowing different perspectives to merge and intertwine. Whether it's sharing anecdotes around the dinner table or engaging in joint artistic endeavors, collaborating on extraordinary tales will strengthen the bond between family members and lead to the creation of truly magnificent narratives.

J is for Joyous Discoveries: Unforgettable Family Adventures

Every family has experienced joyous adventures that deserve to be documented and celebrated. From unforgettable vacations to heartwarming escapades in your hometown, relive these cherished moments through storytelling. Share the laughter, the excitement, and the endless joy that have shaped your family's collective memory.

K is for Keeping the Flame Alive: Passing Stories Through Generations

Stories have the power to transcend time and keep memories alive. Create a storytelling tradition within your family, where the tales of the past are passed down through generations. As the flame of storytelling is kept alive, your family's creative stories will continue to thrive, connecting present and future family members in an unbreakable chain.

L is for Lifetime of Learning: Lessons in Resilience

Within each family's creative stories lies a wealth of wisdom and lessons that span generations. From stories of resilience in times of adversity to the pursuit of dreams against all odds, learn from the experiences of your family members. Embrace these lessons and cultivate a spirit of resilience within yourself, turning your family's stories into guiding beacons of hope.

M is for Multigenerational Collaboration: Voices from Different Eras

Imagine the wealth of knowledge and stories that emerge when multiple generations come together. Bridging the gap between different eras and embracing the unique perspectives from each generation opens up a world of creativity and inspiration. Encourage intergenerational collaboration within your family to create a diverse and captivating tapestry of stories.
