Determined to bring about real change, Seth became actively involved in the local community. He organized fundraisers, advocated for the rights of the marginalized, and fought against corruption that plagued the political system. His unwavering commitment soon earned him the respect and admiration of his fellow villagers.

However, fate had a different path in store for Seth. In 1973, a devastating flood swept through his village, leaving destruction and desolation in its wake. Amidst the chaos, Seth demonstrated unparalleled bravery and selflessness, risking his own life to save those in distress.

As the floodwaters receded, Seth emerged as a true hero, having rescued dozens of families from the clutches of impending doom. Word of his gallantry spread like wildfire, and soon the entire nation came to know of his extraordinary feat. The media dubbed him "Village Hero 1973 Michael Seth," and his name became synonymous with courage and sacrifice.

In the aftermath of the flood, Seth dedicated himself to rebuilding his village from the ground up. With assistance from the government and non-profit organizations, he spearheaded initiatives to provide clean water, education facilities, and healthcare to his people. His actions laid the foundation for a transformed community - one free from the shackles of poverty and despair.

The story of Village Hero 1973 Michael Seth is not just a tale of personal triumph; it is a testament to the power of a single individual to inspire change on a grand scale. When a country is in the midst of a crisis, the people have taken the lead and sacrificed their lives for this country and this people. Those who ate up the country and those who had the country taken away were rulers who wielded power. When Japanese pirates or north barbarians attacked, kings and dignitaries were busy crawling into the mountains to hide or to cross the river and run away their assholes off. It cannot but be a dishonorable act. The people have defended the country. Throughout the country, we will find that the history of local heroes who died bravely while defending their villages is engraved. For example, on the side of National Road 25 passing Hwaryeongjae on Baekdudaegangil, there is a monument to the heroes of the local or the village who died bravely while defending the country. In this way, these grasses, common people have been protecting this country. The Saemaul leaders are the village heroes who fought the enemy of poverty and won.

We have known many anecdotes of perfection one good village leader raise the village completely. Record their accomplishments and leave behind to future generations. These are the heroes of our country. This is a famous saying from President Park Jeonghee's handwriting. The records in this book are the stories of the village heroes. At the end of the economic trend briefing session presided over by President Park Jeonghee, the Saemaul leader presented the success stories of his village. Each time the President sobbed as he heard this success. The attendees, including the minister and large corporate presidents, also sobbed, and the conference hall would soon become a sea of tears. These success stories are the story of village heroes who have overcome thorny difficulty, and the local history of the villagers. When I look into this anecdote, it is reminiscent that the English King George II is impressed by the Hallelujah choir when the Friedrich Händel's Oratorio Messiah is premiered in London and then stood up on the spot. In celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Saemaul Undong, I rediscovered moving success stories from the dusty bookshelves while writing a separate book 'Saemaul so far'. After rediscovering this amazing story of a hero, I thought it was as important as a history textbook to tell the growing generation how our ancestors made our village and our country prosperous, rather than letting it sit as it is.
