Armed with her medical knowledge and unwavering compassion, Jeannie was a beacon of hope amid the chaos and destruction. She ventured into the fire-ravaged zones, treating the injured and providing solace to those who had lost everything. Her unwavering commitment to the well-being of others made her an invaluable asset in the recovery process.

A Beacon of Hope

Jeannie's unwavering dedication and compassion gave hope to those in dire need. Despite the relentless heat and dangerous conditions, she worked tirelessly to ensure that every victim received the care and support they deserved. Her selflessness extended beyond medical aid, as she offered words of comfort and stood as a symbol of resilience for the affected communities.

Her actions inspired others to lend a helping hand, turning the crisis into a collective effort to rebuild lives. Jeannie's extraordinary spirit resonated with people all over the country, and soon her name became synonymous with the indomitable Australian spirit.

An Unforgettable Bond

Throughout her journey, Jeannie formed deep connections and bonds with the individuals she encountered. The stories of survival and hope she witnessed often left a lasting impact on her own life. From consoling grieving families to witnessing miraculous reunions, Jeannie's experiences gave her a renewed appreciation for the strength of the human spirit in the face of adversity.

Not only did Jeannie touch the lives of those she helped, but she was also deeply influenced by the resilience and courage of the survivors. Their stories became a driving force in her passion for making a difference, and she pledged to continue her efforts even after the fires were extinguished.

A National Inspiration

In recognition of her outstanding contributions, Jeannie Ingraham received the Australian Bravery Medal from the Governor-General. The medal, awarded to individuals who show acts of bravery, courage, and selflessness, placed Jeannie among the esteemed ranks of Australia's national heroes.

Today, Jeannie continues to work as a nurse and actively participates in disaster preparedness programs across the country. Her story serves as a reminder that the Australian spirit runs deep within all of us and that we have the power to make a lasting impact on those around us.

Jeannie Ingraham's story is a testament to the resilient and compassionate nature of Australians. Her unwavering dedication to the well-being of others during the bushfire crisis of 2020 showcased not only her heroism but also the spirit of the entire nation.

It is through stories like Jeannie's that we are reminded of the power of unity and compassion during times of distress. The indomitable Australian spirit shines bright in the face of adversity, and we can all learn from Jeannie's example.

We're All Australians Now follows the tradition of other A & R children's classics such as Mulga Bill's Bicycle and Click Go the Shears with the poem "We're All Australians Now" by A. B. 'Banjo' Paterson illustrated by the award-winning Mark Wilson.

In 1915, Australia's much-loved bush poet Banjo Paterson wrote, as an open letter to the troops, a poem he titles 'We're All Australians Now'.

In this beautifully illustrated picture book, award-winning illustrator Mark Wilson evokes the spirit of Paterson's words in memory of those who fought in World War One.

PRAISE FOR WE'RE ALL AUSTRALIANS NOW

'Multi-talented illustrator Mark Wilson has taken this poem and created this outstanding version of We're All Australians Now in picture book format. Wilson's clever collage layouts of sketches and oil paintings brilliantly bring this poem to life by showing us a reflection of everyday life in 1915' -- Reading Time
